August 2020 Your President's Message

August 2020

Greetings Brother Shillelaghs,

I hope everyone survived the tropical storm.

August is here and the pandemic is still with us. As it looks now, the club will be open outside for a while. So far, we are doing pretty well with it. We have been battling the Corona Virus and the heat lately. Hopefully August will be a cooler month than July.

We have added an additional tent. Thank you to Danny Reilly for letting the club borrow it. I want to thank all of the members who volunteered to help put up the tents initially and to all those who helped take down the tents before the tropical storm hit and those that helped in raising them after it hit us.

The 2020 Golf Outing was a success, even though we had to once again deal with rain. It seems it wouldn't be a Shillelagh Golf Outing without some rain. Thank you to Ray Barnes and his committee of volunteers. Thanks to Rosco, Tommy Whitney and Billy "Numbers" Ryan for working the beer carts. You all did a great job!

The Shillelagh Fluke Tournament was held on August 8th. We had great weather and a great crowd. Fantastic job by Billy Clohosey and Ryan Lavender in putting this event together. Thank you to all of the people who volunteered to make this event a tremendous success. Thank you to all the businesses that donated prizes for the raffle and thanks to Mike Muha for the food he donated.

Saturday September 5th will be our Kentucky Derby Party and Mark Chadwick will be making Margaritas.

Saturday September 19th will be a half way to St. Patrick's Day Party.

In addition, we will be looking to schedule a bingo night or a movie night.

Volunteers will be needed for these events. More details to follow.

Congratulations and best of luck to all those new members who were installed at our August 5th meeting. Try to get involved in volunteering for upcoming club events. It gives you a great opportunity to meet club members in this special club. Thank you to the membership committee for all you do!

Enjoy the remainder of the summer.

Dear Friends:

The Pipes and Drums of the Jersey Shore Shillelaghs will be hosting our annual Robert S. Underhill Memorial Golf Outing at Pebble Creek Golf Course in Colts Neck, NJ on Monday October 5, 2020. Over the last 18 years, this event has allowed the band a great opportunity to raise funds for its equipment and transportation fund as well as for area charities that help sick children. Our fundraising efforts have been a big success thanks to people like you who participate in the outing or sponsor a hole on the course.

This year, we hope to have over 110 golfers and spectators enjoy a beautiful day on the "links." We are asking for the support of the business community to sponsor our outing and help us meet our fundraising goals for this year. Hole and refreshment stop sponsors are needed and all proceeds will be used to offset the band's equipment needs and for specific charities.

Please consider "sponsoring" a hole, a refreshment cart, or a grill pit. We will proudly display a sign on the course acknowledging your generous support of our efforts. We are an IRS 501(3) (c) charitable organization and all donations are tax-deductible. Please complete the attached form and return it to the above address with your check by 9/28/20 so that we can have the signs prepared for the outing. You can contact John Underhill (732) 642-2845 or myself (732) 267-1233 if you need our Tax-ID number or if you have any questions. Thank you for your generous support.

Sincerely,

Scott MacDonald

Irish History #74

Ordinary Men and Women Helped Win the Irish War of Independence

A recent Irish Times news article carried a headline: "Michael Collins importance in the War of Independence has been exaggerated." If alive today, Eamon de Valera would certainly agree with that statement. He spent a lifetime suppressing the historical truth about Collins' contribution to Ireland's independence and nationhood.

The article made two points. First, outside of Dublin, the IRA "was highly decentralized, with GHQ (General Headquarters) exercising nominal control over its provincial brigades." Second, the article attributed the war's success to the unheralded, ordinary people who supported the IRA insurgency.

IRA Brigades in counties beyond Dublin financed and armed themselves. They were responsible for their own operations. Guerilla warfare fighting developed not as part of a central plan but more as a local strategy "characterized by ingenuity, adaptability and flexibility in an ever-changing military situation." The "flying column" was an example of how the guerilla war was waged.

The August 1920 Restoration of Order in Ireland Act authorized internment and courts-martial for civilians, and led to the arrest of IRA fighters. As a result, many Irish Volunteers went "on-the-run." The Irish populace provided them safe houses to hideout and avoid capture. Many of the on-the-runs were selected to join "flying columns," who deployed hit and run tactics against British security forces. Engagements were chosen where it was possible to inflict more casualties on the enemy than would be suffered by the column.

The tactics resulted in the destruction of roads, bridges, and railways. Additionally, police barracks were destroyed or seized. One example from 1920 involved the capture of Ballytrain Barracks by the Monaghan Brigade. The garrison's weapons and ammunition were seized.

Flying Columns also conducted thousands of ambushes on British forces. The most famous was the Kilmichael ambush in 1920. An IRA flying column led by Tom Barry wiped-out a British military patrol near Macroon, Co. Cork. The patrol was traveling in two Crossley Tenders. On reaching the kill zone, they were attacked by the IRA from both sides of the road. The flying column killed 17 Auxiliaries, while losing three men.

Operational successes like these were the direct result of local efforts.

The Dublin Brigade was an exception to the decentralization thesis. Great Britain exercised control over Ireland from its Dublin Castle headquarters. Therefore, IRA strength in Ireland's capital was crucial to the overall war effort. In addition to its military significance, fighting the British at its seat of power had important psychological and propaganda value. GHQ, located in Dublin, exercised authority over the Dublin Brigade. Collins' military influence was most effective here. In addition, Collins' Intelligence Squad was based in Dublin. Throughout the war's duration, the Intelligence Squad and the Dublin Brigade inflicted grievous losses on British forces.

It appeared that a "mass movement" among the populace supported the IRA. The movement included individuals who never fired a gun but "watched for raiding crown forces, hid arms, intercepted British communications, scouted for republican fugitives, delivered messages and carried out other critical, if unglamorous, tasks." Some of these important things were performed by members of the IRA. Often, however, the mission was carried out by civilians including republican women from the Cumann na mBan. When Irish Volunteers procured guns, ammunition and gelignite in Liverpool, Great Britain, they relied on Irish ship captains, sailors and custom inspectors - civilians - to transport the items across the Irish Sea. Another example making it evident to the British that they were dealing with a movement occurred when crowds gathered outside of prisons and sang "A Soldier's Song" for the IRA men inside.

The Cumann na mBan was formed in 1914 as the female affiliate of the Irish Volunteers. Its members, including Countess Constance Markievicz who fought at St. Stephen's Green, took part in the Easter Rising. Women of the Cumann na mBan were also deeply involved in the War of Independence. They cared for members of flying columns who were injured or sick. They provided them food and cigarettes. Women were especially important in keeping communication and intelligence networks functioning. They carried messages from GHQ to regional brigades and between units within the same brigade. Some went undercover to befriend British soldiers and gather intelligence.

Women intercepted British communications, monitored British forces and identified spies. The information they gathered was passed on to GHQ and local commanders. Individuals who associated with the enemy were viewed as "potential spies." Those individuals were warned that their continued association would carry consequences, and that spies were subject to execution.

Collins received information about the identity of British agents operating at Dublin Castle and where they lived from a woman who worked as a "shorthand typist" at the Castle. He used the information to kill 13 members of the British Intelligence Cairo Gang on November 21, 1920 - "Bloody Sunday."

Cumann na mBan members also watched over arms caches, and transported guns and ammunition "concealed in luggage or underneath clothing." At IRA funerals, they dressed in uniform and marched behind uniformed Irish Volunteers.

The women of the Cumann na mBan displayed great courage in performing all of these tasks. Beyond their support of the military effort, they were politically engaged. The Cumann na mBan collected for the Dail Loan and helped distribute money to prisoners' dependents.

They participated in the Dail's boycott of Royal Irish Constabulary police officers and their families. Senior members bolstered the Dail's propaganda activities by advocating for Ireland's independence in Europe and America. In 1921, six of its members were elected to the Second Dail.

What all of this shows is that ordinary men and women did extraordinary things that made victory possible. They are the unsung heroes of the Irish War of Independence. We should all recognize the impact of their contributions while simultaneously appreciating the critical role played by Michael Collins.
